INTRODUCTION

Zamboni (2016) analyzes traditional Dissertations. This paper compares Zamboni (2016) with the Doctorate of Divinity and Doctor of Philosophy in Religious Studies, designed by the Department has of Religious Studies through the IGDU, JECJEF University, and the Education Foundation..

"At Least for most doctoral degrees in Western legal systems, the way to show such knowledge it is not by answering questions posed by an examiner, as is common for most academic exams. The path to be taken by the doctoral candidate in order to demonstrate ... his knowledge is by writing a research (either a monography or as a collection of articles). The problem raised by this choice of means is that the main function of a research in general is not to show the degree of knowledge of the author (at least not explicitly).The main purpose of a research (at least in a perfect world) is to say something new to the reader or (in case of a more systematizing work), to show a different and perhaps better picture of something already said by others. In either case, i.e. whether innovative or systematizing, the fundamental task does not lie in showing personal knowledge of a specific field of (study). It instead lies in either guiding the reader through difficult parts of an author, field, or theory or in leading her or him to a certain solution of practical or theoretical problems of an area" (P. 779) of understanding.

This paper complements traditional Doctorate with and Zamboni (2016) with administrative science of the Doctorate of Divinity and Doctor of Philosophy in Religious Studies degrees, presented by the Department of Religious Studies through the IGDU, JECJEF University and the Education Foundation.

12. Statement on the H.Ph.D. 0001.1., Excerpts from Education Foundation, "History of Education and History of The PhD", Education Foundation Preliminary Paper Series, with sincere gratitude to EF PRA James E Curtis, Jr & Wikipedia.org.
 0002.2., Historically, "...advanced degrees were not a criterion for professorships at most colleges. That began to change as the more ambitious scholars at major schools (began to immigrate from) the U.S." in the mid-1800s. Furthermore, "half of the institutions awarding earned Ph.D.s in 1899 were undergraduate institutions that granted the degree for work done away from campus...Degrees awarded by universities without (association and/or U.S. Department of Education certified) Ph.D. programs accounted for about a third of the 382 doctorates recorded by the U.S. Department of Education in 1900." Among these doctorate degrees, "8-10% were honorary" ,i.e. H.Ph.D.
13. Statement on the Ph.D. 0003.3., Excerpts from Education Foundation, "History of Education and History of The PhD", Education Foundation Preliminary Paper Series, with sincere gratitude to EF PRA James E Curtis, Jr & Wikipedia.org.
 0004.5., "A Doctor of Philosophy,...Ph.D. or PhD..is the highest academic degree awarded by universities in most countries. Ph.D.s are awarded for programs across the whole breadth of academic fields. The completion of a Ph.D. is often a requirement for employment as a university professor, researcher, or scientist in many fields. Individuals who have earned a Doctor of Philosophy degree may, in most jurisdictions, use the title of 'Doctor' ...often abbreviated 'Dr'...or, in non-English speaking countries...post-nominal letters such as 'Ph.D.', or 'PhD'."
 0005.1., Comparatively, "'philosophy' (of Doctor of Philosophy) does not refer to the (study) of philosophy, but is used in a broader sense in accordance with its original Greek meaning, ..."love of wisdom". In most of Europe, all fields...history, philosophy, social sciences, mathematics, and ...natural sciences,...other than the so-called ...vocational... curriculum..., were traditionally known as philosophy."
 Historically, "the requirements to earn a Ph.D. degree vary considerably according to the country, institution, and time period, from entry-level research degrees to higher doctorates." U.S. students typically undergo a series of three phases in the course of their work toward the Ph.D. degree", 1. coursework, 2. examinations and "higher level" teaching, & 3. written dissertation.
14. Statement on the postdoc 0006.5., Excerpts from Education Foundation, "History of Education and History of The PhD, Post-Doctoral", Education Foundation Preliminary Paper Series, with sincere gratitude to EF PRA James E Curtis, Jr & Wikipedia.org.
 0007.7., "A postdoctoral researcher or postdoc is a person professionally conducting research after the completion of their doctoral studies, typically a Ph.D. ... In some countries, postdoctoral research may lead to further formal qualifications or certification, while in other countries it does not. Postdoctoral research may be funded through an appointment with a salary or an appointment with a stipend or sponsorship award. Appointments for such a research position may be called postdoctoral research fellow, postdoctoral research associate or postdoctoral research assistant, i.e. PRA. The median salary of postdoctoral researchers is 44% less than the ...average for tenured positions"
